When opening the NTBackup program there is an option to eject a tape.

However, using it by commandline (and scheduling) there is no (visible) option to eject the tape after backup is complete.

Does anyone know if it is possible to eject the tape using a commandline option ?

Hi Richard

At the end of the batch file that runs ntbackup, that you have scheduled with AT, enter the following:ntbackup ejectThis works for me on a NT 4 Server. I use AT to schedule the running of a batch file that starts ntbackup during the night.

Hope this is of use.
